

Quality improvement in ambulatory practices has become an important topic on the forefront of emerging healthcare issues. Advanced Practice Nursing plays an integral role in providing leadership and vision around this important measure of practice. The right educational and reference materials are inherent tools to ensure the highest level of quality improvement in patient care and practice operation.

The Institute for Nursing Centers proudly offers the following manual to help guide and educate Advanced Practice Nurses in the topic of Quality Improvement.

QUALITY IMPROVEMENT FOR ADVANCED NURSE PRACTITIONERS

By: Kathryn Fiandt, APRN, DNS, FAANP

Topics addressed in this manual include the importance of quality improvement, steps in the quality improvement process, measuring outcomes and quality indicators, frameworks for intervention models, barriers to improved outcomes, beyond quality improvement and patient care, and quality improvement in nurse practitioner education.
